CONGRESS HAS COMPLETED ITS EXTRA SESSION

Roosevelt Victorious In Battle To Cut Veterans' Funds

Washington, June 16—(AP)—The Roosevelt Congress, carver of a mighty legislative program for national recovery, adjourned at 12:21 o'clock CST. This morning, after chalking up a final notable victory for the President.

Its last act was accepting of his terms on expenditures for veterans, thus safeguarding the President's economy program which lops off hundreds of millions to achieve balance of the ordinary budget.

The Senate fought to the last the same fight that had held up adjournment since last Saturday but, blocked by the utter refusal of the House to accept an enlargement of spending for ex-soldiers, it gave in, voted 5 to 36 to take the compromise offered by the administration, passed the $650,000,000 independent offices appropriation bill and adjourned.

The House, that had lingered idly through the night quit too, after cheering and yelling applause at a last minute letter from the President.

Roosevelt Sent Thanks

In it he thanked Senators and Representatives "for making possible, on the broad average, a more sincere and whole-hearted cooperation between the legislative and executive branches of the United States government than has been witnessed by the American people in many a long year."

That sentence covered a record which has no parallel in American history; every major request by the President, some for power greater than ever given an executive in peace time and perhaps in war, had been granted. The Congress had stuck almost exclusively to the President's own program. It had done its work with unexampled speed, adjourning within a week of the date on which he proposed that it go home, and that despite a grueling fight on the

$50,000,000 Wis. Farm Mortgages To Be Financed

Washington, June 16—(AP)—Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Governor of the Farm Credit Administration, today announced a plan for refinancing approximately $50,000,000 in farm mortgages held by Wisconsin banks which he said will make possible the reopening of closed banks there, early payment of depositors and release of more than $18,000,000 in public deposits.

Morgenthau said he had arranged for selling $35,000,000 in bonds from the issue of up to $200,000,000 authorized for mortgage refinancing by Congress and had worked out a comprehensive plan calling for the scaling down of the face values of mortgages held by banks which will make possible refinancing of $50,000,000 of them.

He added that an intensive drive to complete the program in from three to six months will be started Monday with the establishment of special officers by his organization at the state capital at Madison.

Morgenthau said similar plans for other states will be undertaken if found feasible.

Rental From State Armories Need Not Be Paid Treasurer

Springfield, Ill., June 16—(AP)—Money received for rental of state armories need not be paid into the State Treasury, the Supreme Court decided today.

The court upheld the order of the Cook county Superior Court in dismissing the complaint of Edwin A. Green against Adjutant General Carlos E. Black and Charles G. Dawes, commanding officers of the 202nd Co. Artillery.

Green contended that money received from renting armories to civilians for games and exhibitions is being paid into army, regimental or company funds and should rightfully go to the State Treasury.

The trial court sustained a demurrer by Black and Dawes and threw out Green's complaint for want of equity.

Last Rites Saturday For Mrs. Chas. Bott

The funeral of Mrs. Charles Bott will be conducted Saturday afternoon at 2:30 from the family residence, 608 Cedar street, Rev. Lloyd W. Walter, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church will officiate and interment will be in Oakwood.

MIDDLE WEST'S OUTLOOK GOOD, JUDGE IS TOLD

Receivers Now Giving Consideration To Reorganization

Chicago, June 16—(AP)—The business outlook for the Middle West Utilities Company, Insull holding company, has become so good the receivers told Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley in their first annual report that they "will begin to consider reorganization" as soon as the present upturn shows signs of permanency.

The report was filed by Edward N. Hurley and Charles A. McCulloch and showed a net deficit for the year following April 15, 1932, when they were named, of $2,799,582.

"One of our principal tasks has been to escape being thrown into bankruptcy," McCulloch said. The report mentioned the loss of all of the company's eastern holdings, amounting to 40 per cent of its gross income, through separate bankruptcies.

Total operating revenues for the year were reported as $66,751,863. Miscellaneous revenue, $1,708,434. Total operating expenses of $40,618,055 in addition to interest, divided and other necessary outlays accounted for the deficit.

To reduce expenses as much as possible the receivers said a program of economy to bring about savings amounting to more than $11,000,000 annually had been instituted.

VETERANS' CUTS TO DEPEND MUCH UPON PRESIDENT

His Orders Under New Economy Act To Determine Slashes

Washington, June 16—(AP)—Veterans' aid changes made by Congress this session will depend much on executive orders yet to be issued, interpreting the newly-made compensation laws.

In general, cuts will be made along the following lines, according to the best information of veterans' authorities.

Mexican War:

No soldiers living. Widows pensions of $50 monthly cut 10 per cent.

Civil War:

Soldiers' pensions, service, $75, disability, $50, cut 10 per cent. Widows $30, $40, and $50 monthly, cut 10 per cent.

Spanish-American War:

Final compromise provides that all Spanish War veterans over 55 years of age, who are 50 per cent or more disabled and who are in need, shall remain on the rolls at a basic rate of $15 a month.

Since the basis of who constituted "need" is to be determined by the President, the entire status of the Spanish War veterans situation depends upon the executive order.

Wright Means, chairman of the National Legislative Committee of Spanish War Veterans, estimated that if all now on the rolls listed as 50 or more per cent disabled are retained, about two-thirds of the Spanish War veterans will continue to receive compensation.

It will range from $15 to $100 a month, instead of from $20 to $72 as before the economy act.

Means estimated about a thousand and totally disabled Spanish War veterans would receive more than before the passage of the act, all the rest less, the average cut being about 60 per cent, and from 60,000 to 65,000 names to be dropped entirely.

World War

Whereas the first regulations issued by the President under the economy act cut the average veterans' pay from $44.16 to $20.10, the final compromise guarantees that no service-connected case will be cut more than 25 per cent, and the average only 18 per cent.

The economy act regulation cut all presumptives from the rolls, while the compromise sets up reviewing boards to pass on whether or not their injuries were really war-connected, and pending such decision, continues them on the rolls until October 31 instead of cutting them off July 1.

SALES TAX HAS BEEN PASSED BY ILLINOIS SENATE

Is Given Barely Required Vote: Faces Hard Fight In House

Springfield, Ill., June 16—(AP)—The administration's $100,000,000 non-referendum bond issue bill for the Chicago Sanitary District today was sent to Governor Horner when the Senate concurred in House amendments.

The sanitary district bill is the first part of Horner's nine-point legislative program to be approved by both houses.

As it passed the Senate, the bill by Majority Leader R. V. Graham provided a bond issue of $18,000,000 to aid the Sanitary District in completing sewage disposal works ordered by the Supreme Court of the United States.

The House amended the bill to remove all limitations on bonds and then, at gubernatorial request, set the figure at $100,000,000.

Bonds Unsaleable

Democratic leaders said the bonds would be unsaleable but might be used as collateral for federal loans in completing the project by which diversion of water from Lake Michigan is to be reduced to 1,500 cubic feet a second by 1939.

The forward march of the nine-point legislative program today had carried the sales tax issue from the Senate to the House.

Horner's first major victory of the late-session drive was won with a bare majority of 26 Senate votes and transferred to the House the battle over the revised bill for a two percent tax on retail sales.

Further encouragement was given the administration. Two other Horner-sponsored measures were approved late yesterday, adding to the general program made since the Democratic support was concentrated by a caucus this week.

Passed Wage Bill

Flushed with success over sales tax passage, the Senate at once passed the minimum wage bill for women and children.

In two hours, the upper house completed its final arguments over the two percent sales tax and passed it, 26 to 11. Backing the administration were 22 Democrats including ten from downstate, and four Republicans.

Senator James O. Monroe, Collinsville Democrat, continued his bitter opposition, charging that votes had been sold for patronage, that a new tax system was being promoted under the guise of a relief emergency and that a special session would be called in the fall to extend the unemployment relief feature of the plan.

A small group of Cook county Senators remained silent, but the 26th vote was finally obtained from one of the border counties, focal point of opposition to the three percent sales tax which was held unconstitutional more than a month ago.

Faces House Fight

In the House, the sales tax needs 77 votes. Administration influence will back it to the limit but last-ditch opposition from part of the downstate delegation will, at least, impede the bill's progress during the last of June.

A telegram from President Roosevelt to the Governor endorsing the minimum wage bill was read just before the measure was sent to the House.

House Program

A special House order of business today was the administration plan to give the Illinois Commerce Commission added powers to regulate utilities and lower their rates.

With the Tax Commission bills, proposing centralized assessment of stock of all corporations, these are the more controversial portions of the nine-point program. The tax bills are on the House calendar.

Senate leaders expected a vote today on the congressional reapportionment proposal dividing representation between Cook and downstate counties.

The House passed and sent to the Senate the Doyle bill defining motor trucks and buses as common carriers to be under the jurisdiction of the Commerce Commission at the rates charged by railroads.

OTTAWA PRIEST DEAD

Ottawa, Ill., June 16—(AP)—Dean Thomas E. Madden, 69, priest of St. Columbus Catholic church, died today. He came to Ottawa from Peoria ten years ago.

Another Precinct For Dixon Township Voted By Board Supervisors

Co. Dads Refused To Ask State Funds For Horse Show

The Board of Supervisors in the fourth and closing meeting of their June session, yesterday afternoon, voted unanimously to refuse to name the Lee County Farm & Horse Show of this city to receive state aid from the Illinois Department of Agriculture for the holding of a 4-H and vocational agriculture display here this fall. In order to obtain the state aid it was necessary that the board adopt a resolution naming the agency which was to receive the financial help from the state. The resolution came from the educational committee of the board and suggested that the Lee County Fair Association at Amboy was still existent and that plans for the 1933 4-H club show had already been completed, and closed with the recommendation that the board take no action in naming the Dixon organization to receive the state aid.

The fees and salaries committee presented a recommendation fixing the salary of the County Veterinarian, Dr. R. R. Dwyer, at $2,580 per year, the state paying a portion of the salary, which action was concurred in by the board.

New Precinct Here

In selecting the polling places in the various townships, Dixon township was accorded a badly needed addition in the twelfth precinct, which was located at the Speedway lunch room at the entrance to the Dixon state hospital grounds. Lou Conrad and Frank Edwards were named Republican judges of election and Tom Prindaville as the Democratic judge of the new precinct.

Another change in Dixon voting precincts was the transfer of the fourth polling place from the Foreman Tailor Shop to the Buick garage building.

Chairman Walter Ortsgren selected Harvey O. Risser, of Willow Creek township, and Henry Knechtel of Wyoming as delegates to the annual supervisors' convention to be held at Danville in August. Alternates named were Leon Hart of Palmyra and John "Assig" of Brooklyn township.

The board voted to continue membership in the state association and also to renew the county's membership in the Lee County Farm Bureau.

No Cemetery Survey

The soldiers and sailors' committee presented a report recommending that the County Surveyor be instructed not to proceed with the survey of the cemeteries of the county in the preparation of plats and blue prints of deceased veterans' graves, on account of the present financial condition of the county, which action was concurred in by the board.

Upon motion of Supervisor Gilbert Finch of Amboy, Chairman Ortsgren selected a special committee composed of Supervisors D. H. Spencer of Dixon, Leon Hart of Palmyra and Lucien Hemenway of Alto to draft resolutions of condolence and sympathy to be forwarded to the family of Supervisor John T. Emmitt of Nelson township, whose home was saddened at noon yesterday by the passing of his son-in-law, Lyle Siebolt.

Select Grand Jury

Grand jurors for the September term of the Lee County Circuit Court, were selected as follows:

Says Roosevelt May Heed Senate

Washington, June 16—(AP)—President Roosevelt may hold up two of his reorganization orders until January in keeping with a non-binding resolution adopted yesterday by the Senate.

The Senators voted for postponement of reorganization orders cutting 25 per cent off all expenditures for agricultural extension and vocational education work, and transferring all government park activities to the Interior Department.

The resolution has no legal force because the House did not adopt it also, but leader Robinson told the Senate he felt Roosevelt would consider the intent of the action, and suspend the two.

The identification of the two desperadoes was made by E. Richitti, mechanic at the garage. He said his brother Adam, accompanied by Floyd, stopped to have some work done on their automobile.

Richitti said the Sheriff stopped in for a chat. He was forced into

RAILROAD MEN TAKE NO HEED OF ROADS' PLEA

Brotherhoods Plan To Ignore Demand For Wage Reductions

Chicago, June 16—(AP)—Spokesmen for the million union workers on America's 201 class 1 railroad declared today they would ignore the demands of their employers for a 22½ per cent slice in wages to replace a temporary "deduction" in effect at present.

Sentiments of the employees were expressed at a conference of the Railway Labor Executives Association, comprised of the four unions having contracts with the railroads. The conference was called to consider the Emergency Railway Act, expected to become effective soon.

Many of the union leaders declared they did not consider the railroads to be serious in the wage slice demand. Others declared they believed the railroads would take cognizance of demands that they "be patriotic and go along with President Roosevelt's program of maintaining wages."

The railroads, however, in demanding the reduction yesterday, declared themselves united 100 per cent in the demand and stated they would make no concessions.

Alexander F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and chairman of the Labor Executives Association, declared the unions would not recognize the demands in any way, not even so far as to attend the wage conference requested by the roads for July 12.

DELEGATES ARE MARKING TIME AT LONDON MEET

Awaiting Definite Word From Washington On Stabilization

London, June 16—(AP)—The world economic conference after important meetings of its monetary and economic commissions today decided virtually to mark time on the major problems over the week-end pending definite word regarding Washington's attitude toward currency stabilization.

The gold standard countries, it was said in French quarters, do not intend to budge until approval of a stabilization project has been received from the American administration.

French delegates and their followers expressed keen disappointment over Secretary Woodin's announcement in Washington that the United States government had not agreed to any currency stabilization proposal, which are understood to have been considered by French, American and British financial leaders.

The French indicated they had thought the stabilization question had been settled when they conceded the chairmanship of the monetary commission to James M. Cox, second in command of the United States group.

It had been reported that plans were afoot to stabilize the American dollar at between $4.04 to $4.07 to the British pound.

In a formal statement given out in Washington last night and received here this morning, the American Secretary of the Treasury said that "the discussions in London (regarding stabilization) must be explanatory only, and any agreement on this subject will be reached in Washington not elsewhere."

In the meantime, British, French and American bankers are meeting in London to study the problem and it was widely stated that they are expected to reach a decision in two or three days.

With the conference facing this fresh impasse, the American delegates were standing pat on their informal denial that an agreement had been reached on stabilization and were awaiting instructions from Washington.

Deny Agreement

From British official sources today there also came a denial that an agreement had been reached for stabilization of the pound-dollar exchange.

The American delegation received further appointments to the

FATE HIDDEN IN NORTHLAND OR BERING SEA

Gasoline Must Have Been Exhausted Last Evening

Nome, Alaska, June 16—(AP)—Sparsely settled northlands or the Bering Sea today held the fate of Jimmie Mattern, round-the-world flier, unreported since leaving the Siberian coast two days ago.

On the ninth and most difficult leg of his solo world flight, Mattern's gas supply, had he remained in the air, would have been exhausted by 10:30 P. M. CST. last night. Along the 2,500 mile hop from Khabarovsk, Siberia, no ship or land settlement had reported sighting him.

While searching plans were held in abeyance today because of the frequency with which "lost planes" have turned up in Alaska, aviation men recalled that he had said before leaving Siberia several days ago on his first attempt to reach Alaska that his plane was in "fine shape."

No Storms Reported

No severe storms had faced him on the "Post-Gatty Trail," over which the globe girdling record holders—Wiley Post and Harold Gatty—had flown two years ago, this month, landing at Sanamon Beach, about 40 miles east of here.

He also had received the advice of Boris Lukhu, experienced Soviet flier, before leaving Khabarovsk, and he gained experience in Alaska flying two years ago.

Fog banks and overcast skies lay over the Bering Sea and the western coast of Alaska in the early hours yesterday, at the completion of the 16 to 17 hours he was given to make the 2,500 mile flight. Had he pushed through to interior Alaska, however, he should have found safe landing places easily, aviators said.

"Lost" Planes Not New

"Lost" planes are no new thing to Alaska. Two years ago, Mattern was "lost" while flying a refueling ship for the Reg Robbins Seattle-Tokyo flight attempt. He came down safely at Ruby, but news of his safety was delayed 12 hours in being sent out.

A landing at an isolated settlement or in the wilderness might not be reported for days.

The snow is gone from much of southern and central Alaska at this season of the year, and the ice is out of the rivers.

The main danger Mattern faced was the formation of ice on his wings if he flew through cloud banks or fog. With the temperature near freezing, his plane would have been forced down very quickly.

He left Khabarovsk at 1:30 P. M. CST. Wednesday, after having been forced back after eight hours in the air two days previously.

was a bit younger. No one suggested that she teach me music, certainly not I! She was determined that I learn and it was only my own impatience that broke up her interest in my musical education.

Something to Cherish

Later I began to buy pieces and learn them. I never played well—music was always hard for me—but I wouldn't trade my bit of knowledge for anything I know at the present. My appreciation of good music has continued to grow.

All this goes to prove a point. If anyone in the family is interested enough, children may be taught many things they do not get in school. I was especially fortunate. I told my friend she could teach her daughter music, at least start her on it, and later when she can afford it, get her a teacher. The first notes, the ability to read, to place the fingers on the keys correctly will help so much. It is worth while.

Watch Your Diet When on Vacation

With vacations just around the corner and week-end trips imminent, we must watch our diet while away if we would come home feeling "fair and fit." Food is so often the sign and symbol of hospitality that if we are guests we are prone to over-eat. Mealtime breaks the monotony of travel, while the holiday feeling often leads one out of his regular diet.

The method of transportation plays a large part in determining just what we shall eat. Hiking, motoring, traveling by train or boat—each way demands different types of diet.

When we "hike" we go on our own power, so to speak, and we need plenty of fuel for we use an extra amount of energy. Plenty of good hearty food three times a day is necessary. However, eating between meals of anything other than fruit is not advisable.

Eat Lightly on Train

On train, meal-time becomes into the day and provides something to do with the result that each meal is welcomed and heartily enjoyed. But there is usually lack of fresh air and always lack of exercise. Consequently, light, easily digested foods should be chosen. Plenty of vegetables, plain salads, fresh or stewed fruits and broiled or roasted meats without rich gravies or sauces furnish a varied and wholesome diet.

Rich desserts and heavy meats should be eaten sparingly. Candy is a temptation to which the wise person will not yield. Drink plenty of water and eat fruit if the urge to eat between meals is overpowering.

Motoring inevitably makes one hungry because fresh air stimulates the appetite. However, lack of exercise makes it necessary to plan meals with care. Bulky foods, coarse cereals, leafy vegetables and plenty of fruits will be beneficial. Three well-balanced meals a day should be thoughtfully selected. Eat regularly! The tendency to go an hour or so past the lunch or dinner hour with the hope of finding "something better" should be overcome. Meals at irregular hours give many a headache that could have been avoided.

When children are among the party, extreme care of their diet should be observed. Ice cream cones between meals, pop, crackerjack or any other confection should be forbidden. Apples, oranges, bananas and various fruits in season are always available and are not harmful. Continuous driving and change of scene with little exercise excites and tires children. They must eat plain, well-cooked and nourishing foods which are easily digested. They must have their meals as regularly as they would at home.

SMART FOR SPORTS

(From MILGRIM, New York)

The sailor collar is brand new this summer for spectator sports things. So is the three-quarters length swaggar coat. It is a smart trick to combine them, as is done in a blue and white yachting costume (left). The swaggar coat, with its white-outlined sailor collar and white stars, is worn over a simple white crepe frock with a drawn-work yoke, stitched in blue.

Rough surfaced white silk crepe fashions this spectator sports suit (right), also excellent for nautical purposes, and striped handkerchiefs, linen, in red, blue and white, make the long tunic blouses which has a sailor collar which ends in a blue bow in front. There is a pleated ruffle edging the sailor collar, giving a certain softness to the striped effect. And the linen belt to the tunic has the same blue for the buckle that ties the bow under the chin.

"Early to Rise" Teaches Children Valuable Lesson in Discipline

There is an old saying that "He lives longest who is awake most hours."

Another that "God gives help to early risers."

Literature is replete with maxims about getting out of bed when "rosey fingered dawn" begins to creep up out of the sea.

Tired mothers wish that school would keep from ten to five instead of nine to four. Not only would they get another hour to rest, but the children wouldn't be such bears.

My sympathy is with the mothers. It always seems to me that I am much more tired in the morning than at night. But this is not the problem I am approaching here. It is the effect of early rising on children.

Start Day Together

The child who gets ten hours sleep should be rested in that time if he is well. Some children repair and build enough in nine hours; others take eleven. A mother can regulate bedtime according to age and state of health. Little children need from twelve to thirteen hours at night. A tired grown-up eight, nine or even ten.

The regulating has to be done in the evening, because the family gets up at the same time. That end of it is even.

Why is it better to get up early than to lie until later? Oh yes, because there is school. And because we all think better in the morning.

Well—we don't all think better in the morning. I think much better in the afternoon. Unless we are physically exhausted many of us do. And children I have discovered, are pretty much like us. No one rule fits them all.

However this may be, I think there is a more real benefit to children than that. It doesn't concern school, or the best pancakes for breakfast, or beating the rest of the family to the bathroom.

Training in Discipline

It concerns character itself. That line on God helping the early riser comes in here. There is something about getting out of bed at a given time, much as one hates it, that adds one more bit of iron to the human make-up.

Overcoming and doing things they dislike is excellent discipline for children. All the better discipline because they do not build up any personal resentment about it. It is simply done, that is all. One thing to do that they can't argue or question. Of course they do both, but under it all they hold no grudge.

They may not be healthy, or wealthy or wise in the end, but we usually find early risers people of plan and leading organized lives—successful in some way not mentioned in Richard's Almanac. Nearly always people of "character."

Annual Meeting Dixon Memorial Ass'n

The annual meeting of the Dixon Memorial Association was held last evening at the G. A. R. hall at which time Capt. Thomas W. Clayton was elected president of the organization for the ensuing year. Other officers elected were as follows:

First Vice Pres.—John E. Moyer. Second Vice Pres.—Mrs. Lucy Eastman.

Secretary—Mrs. Viola Strub. Treasurer—Mrs. Maud Hobbs. Trustee—David H. Helmick. Hold over Trustees—John E. Moyer and James Palmer.

Dr. Z. W. Moss has served faithfully as president of the organization during the past few years and has had associated with him, Albert Rugles as first vice president, Rae Arnold, secretary; Miss Ruth Smith, treasurer; and Austin Smith, trustee.

The annual bills were ordered paid and the report of the retiring treasurer revealed a neat balance in the treasury.

Give the Children Music Early

Every mother is a potential teacher. So is every older sister or brother.

It is worth thinking about in these days of limited pocket-books. Not long ago a lady of my acquaintance who plays the piano beautifully was lamenting the lack of money to give her small daughter lessons. It never occurred to her that she could teach the child the rudiments of music herself. Of course she is busy but half an hour three times a week could surely be spared.

Let me tell you a story. I happened at the moment to be visiting my sister Mary Roberts Rinehart. I hadn't touched a piano for years but I sat down and played a few old tunes the other night that surprised both the piano and myself as well as my sister. They were not remembered, these old tunes—they were reflex, imbedded in my spinal column and the tips of my fingers, but there they were, old Victor Herbert operas, "Waitz Blue," "Hearts and Flowers" and so on.

Tunes Stay With One

We began to talk about old times and Miss Walton, her music teacher when she was a little girl, I had the same chance but I was sick much of the time and I didn't like to practice, so in a month or two I was kindly removed from Miss Walton's tried and tired nerves, and my musical future abandoned.

Yet here I was years and years later playing Schubert's "Serenade" and Handel's "Largo." It was these that caught my sister's attention.

Mrs. Rinehart said, "Who did teach you to play? I can't remember."

"You did!"

She gazed at me in astonishment. She thought hard. "So I did," she exclaimed. "But I was not much. You have learned a lot since then."

Don't Wait for Teens

"I hated it like sin, but you made me," I told her. "You taught me all that was in your first exercise book. I remember the day you flew excitedly down the street and bought me my first piece."

"What was it? Bluebells of Scotland?" she smiled.

"No—Sousa's 'High School Cadets.' And I couldn't get it. But once I learned it I played it till the family held its ears. Later I branched out on my own. I never had another teacher. What you taught me I simply worked out by myself."

Mrs. Rinehart must have been about 12 or 13 years old when the commandeer me as a pupil. I

TWENTY YEARS AFTER

It is interesting to notice that Samuel Untermyer, who was counsel to the Pujio committee in its investigation into the "money trust" in 1912, charges that most of the abuses revealed by the current Morgan inquiry were laid bare by his committee 20 years ago.

The Pujio report, Mr. Untermyer points out, condemned security of national banks, interlocking directorates, private banks as depositories and contacts of other banks with the Morgans through underwritings and other privileges.

The committee at the time made a series of recommendations designed to end these evils. For one reason or another Congress failed to act on them. Hence today's investigation covers much of the old ground, and shocks us anew with disclosures that are really two decades old.

There is a moral in that for the present Congress. Let it not, through inaction, make it necessary for a new Morgan investigation to be held in 1953.

WOMEN DRIVERS

The old argument about whether men or women are better automobile drivers gets a new fling in figures compiled recently by the National Safety Council. These figures seem to give the women a good talking point; for they show that while one out of every 21 male drivers is sooner or later involved in a crash, only one in every 86 women drivers comes to grief.

All of this probably won't settle the argument. It will go on, probably, as long as we continue to drive cars. The petulant male has a way of remembering every odd bit of piloting he has ever seen a woman commit on the highway; and no matter how many statistics you feed him, he will always have a way of saying "Those women drivers!" that will reflect his own unconquerable feeling of superiority.

A 400-YEAR PENSION

The Mexican ministry of finance is considering abolishing the pension which has been paid for four centuries to the descendants of Montezuma, famous emperor of the old Aztec empire; and this bit of news is an interesting footnote to one of history's most romantic chapters.

After Cortez had consolidated the Mexican conquest, the Spanish king granted a perpetual pension to Montezuma's descendants. A number of them later were raised to the nobility; in the late 17th century a Mexican viceroy married Montezuma's granddaughter and assumed the title of "Count of Montezuma." And through all the succeeding years the pension has been paid. When Mexico won her independence, the Mexican government took over the responsibility.

Now Mexico is wondering if this hasn't gone on long enough; and the interesting thing to most of us is the realization that a living relic of the Aztec empire still survives in modern Mexico.

A NEEDED REFORM

It is worth noticing that the new securities bill just put through at Washington will make it unnecessary in the future for a Senate committee to hold an expensive investigation to find out what men were on the "favored lists" of firms like the House of Morgan.

The new bill provides that any corporation which sells stock at varying prices must first notify the Federal Trade Commission, and the names of the "friends" who are permitted to buy below the market will be available to the newspapers.

It seems likely that this will cut down on such extensions of privilege to a favored few. Deals of that kind do not thrive in the light of publicity. The new securities bill provides that light, and makes certain that it will be directed where it is most needed.

The university is a mating mill. It should be. With its beautiful campus, magnificent views, adjacent lakes and the opportunities students have to measure each other's worth, why shouldn't the students fall in love?—Prof. E. A. Ross, University of Wisconsin sociologist.

Every person who consents to making terms with the Japanese is my inveterate and eternal enemy.—Feng Yushiang, China's "Christian general."

I've been so busy living that I haven't had time to formulate a philosophy of life.—Samuel Untermyer, noted lawyer, on his 75th birthday.

Stage fright is something to be proud of. It is an electric nervousness that, properly controlled, stirs the actor to higher endeavor.—Stuart Walker, Hollywood movie director.

Airplane passengers today are very matter of fact. For the most part, they look out the windows for points of scenic interest or write letters or sleep.—Ida Novelli, air liner stewardess.

Inflation is a respectable form of repudiation—like taking to drink to get an artificial stimulus.—Viscount Snowden, of Great Britain.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—One of the interesting phases of this session of Congress which has been at work since a few days after President Roosevelt's inauguration appears in the manner in which individuality has been submerged.

It rarely fails at a session which has lasted as long as the present one that some new name does not flash to the fore or the reputation of an old-timer in the Senate or House be enhanced.

Generally speaking, such has not been the case on Capitol Hill at this session. It's been pretty much of a one-man show since Congress met on March 9. President Roosevelt has held the center of the stage virtually all the time.

This is far different from what many observers thought would happen at the start. In the House there were 127 new members, many of whom had come to Washington intent on making a name for themselves from the start.

HOPE-FLUSHED NOVICES—

They had campaigned hard and had promised much. They were determined to make good. Thus you saw an attempt at organization among these newcomers in the beginning which had for its purpose wresting from the leadership in the conduct of the House. And also there were heard many statements like the one uttered by a new member from Nebraska:

"I didn't come down here to lean on anybody's shoulder. . . . If we don't do any more for the country than a lot of old members have, we won't stay here. We might as well take our responsibility now as two years later."

As it has turned out, nothing much, in this respect, was done beyond bold assertions. Once the President started his legislative program moving and the organization of the House clamped down with its iron hand, nearly everything else was over.

IFS AND MAYBES—

Opportunity was not afforded in many instances for even bold assertions. Talk delays legislation, and what the administration wanted was legislation and not talk.

Whether these conditions will continue to prevail will depend largely upon what happens after Congress quits and goes home. Then, if during the summer, the program that has been set in motion at the President's insistence begins to bring the country back to a reasonable sort of prosperity, his hand on Congress next winter perhaps will be as strong as it is now or maybe stronger.

If his program, on the other hand, does not give to the country what is expected there'll probably be trouble in store for him in January.

Individuality, in this case, might refuse to be submerged as it has been in the past. There might be a very determined effort on the part of Congress to take the bit in its own choosing.

It is almost an axiom among us to say that we cannot get away from human nature.

Man being what he is, certainly evil things will go on forever, or so they say. Social impurity, industrial injustice, political corruption, and the strife of nations must be accepted as a part of life, since human nature cannot be changed. The basic instincts of man will always act in the same way, automatically, and there is no help for it.

Of course if that maxim be true, both education and religion are equally false if not futile, and it is idle to hope for any better world than we have today. But it is not true, and even taken as it is it may have another meaning. Indeed, we do not need to get away from human nature; we need only to get human nature away from certain false and foolish ideas which distort it and disfigure its beauty. Our instincts are motors, and can be directed to higher ends.

As late as 1845, there were few men in New Zealand who had not, in their childhood, tasted human flesh. Yet, in a single generation cannibalism was stamped out, and when, as rarely happened, a native could be induced to talk about it, he evinced a

Accomplishments of Congress Compared With Dem. Platform

Country Taken Off Gold Standard Under Money Plank

Washington, June 16.—(AP)—Here is a brief resume of the Democratic platform and the measures passed during the special session of Congress toward fulfillment of its promises:

Economy: A 25 per cent savings in government expenditures was advocated.

Budget: Maintenance of "national credit" through a balanced budget was urged.

Through the Economy Act and the revenue expected from beer, the latest administration figures are that the income for the next fiscal year will lack only about $120,000,000 of meeting expenditures.

Currency: "A sound currency is to be preserved at all hazards," the platform said, and an international monetary conference to consider the rehabilitation of silver was advocated.

The administration took the country off the gold standard and Congress gave the President power to inflate the currency through open market operations, the issuance of greenbacks or reducing the gold content of the dollar. The gold payment clause in existing contracts was abrogated by law. The London economic conference is now considering currency stabilization and the remonetization of silver.

Tariffs: The platform urged a competitive tariff "for revenue," a "fair finding tariff commission" free from executive interference, and reciprocal tariff agreements with other countries.

Congress did not take up the question of tariffs.

Unemployment Relief: Grants to states for relief was approved in the program; a public works program, including the "St. Lawrence Great Lakes deep waters" and the spread of employment through the shorter work week were favored.

The Congress voted $500,000,000 for direct relief grants to states; authorized a $3,300,000,000 public works program. The industrial-control measures provides the means for a reduction in working hours. The St. Lawrence-Great Lakes waterways pact with Canada was not ratified.

Agriculture: Refinancing of farm mortgages and comprehensive legislation to control surpluses and raise farm prices were promised by the platform.

The Secretary of Agriculture was given wide authority to employ any one or all of several relief plans to raise prices. A $2,000,000,000 bond issue for the refinancing of farm mortgages was voted.

National Defense: The platform called for a Navy and Army "adequate for national defense," but a reduction if possible of an "expenditure approaching a billion dollars annually."

The administration directed economies to reduce expenditures in both branches of the service, but additional Naval building and Army airplane construction programs were authorized in the $3,300,000,000 public works measure.

Anti-Trust Laws and Water Power: A "strict and impartial enforcement of the anti-trust" laws was urged as was development of "water power in the public interest."

The anti-trust laws were set aside in the farm, railroad and industrial cases.

ALL-BRAN STOPPED HIS SLEEPLESSNESS AND TIRED FEELING

Cereal Relieved His Constipation

Read this enthusiastic letter from Mr. Haraden:

"My system had been run down for quite some time. About three weeks ago, I started taking ALL-BRAN for breakfast. I had been unable to sleep nights, but now all I have to do is turn in, and before I know it, I am fast asleep."

"I used to have a tired feeling all day, but now that ALL-BRAN is in my home to stay, there will be no more tired feelings with me."—Mr. Carl Haraden, Main Street, Hamilton, Massachusetts.

Science says that ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B. to help tone the intestinal tract. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, this clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this safer than taking pills and drugs—often harmful! Just eat two tablespoons daily for most types of constipation. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

CONGRESS HAS COMPLETED ITS EXTRA SESSION

issue that has smashed all economy programs in the past—funds for veterans.

Harsh Words In Senate

This last fight brought harsh words to the Senate even at the closing hour. The debate had been concluded, the compromise accepted and the last bill passed when Senator Glass (D-Vt.) took the floor to denounce what he called "a wanton and unprovoked attack" on himself by Bronson Cutting, independent Republican of New Mexico, who earlier in the night had given Glass a tongue-lashing for his part in the final conference agreement on the veterans' issue.

When Glass was done, adjournment was voted and the echoing Capitol corridors of debate were closed until next January.

Many of the members already were homebound today to pick up their long delayed home plans. Others stuck around to take part in governmental conferences for execution of the bills they have passed. Some planned to attend the President's signing today of the last notable bill, the industrial control bill, the Glass bank reform act and the Railroad reorganization measure.

Few Tasks Undone

Adjournment found undone only a few tasks. The administration bill to make possible naming of a mainland Governor for Hawaii died under the threat of a filibuster by Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.). Senate resolutions to block the President's $25,000,000 saving program for bureau reorganization were left to die unconsidered by the House.

Relief for municipalities in default on their securities was also lost through failure of the Senate to pass on the bill. Sidetracked earlier had been the President's request for power to impose embargoes on arms and munition shipments to warring countries.

Packet galleries and a crowded floor with members of the House lined up against the rear wall and sitting around on the floor, and looked on interestedly as the Senate last evening turned down the last lap of the session.

Among Senators the tension was conspicuous from the moment the night session began.

Soon after 6 P. M. Senator Byrnes (D-SC) presented formally the conference report on the independent offices bill carrying the controversial veterans' provision. Immediately debate rang out with a continuing hubbub from the back of the chamber and the galleries.

Many Cries of "Vote"

A speaker finally finished, "Vote, vote," the Senators shouted sitting up in their chairs. But not yet, another speaker started. The crowd on the floor and in the galleries sat back again, waiting impatiently.

None of the Senate's famous orators joined the debate. They knew it was useless, the die was cast. Midnight, and still no break. But no one was leaving. It was becoming an endurance contest.

At last the voting began. "No."

No. Aye, Aye," the senators responded, some sharply, some softly. The galleries were silent as the votes were counted.

Crowd Fled Out

Finally the Vice President's voice announced the verdict. There was a buzz of conversation that made it impossible for the Senate to proceed. Congressmen pushed to get out of the chamber and back to their own end of the Capitol. Crowds in the galleries fled out.

From the House walked in a clerk, bearing an eagerly awaited, small square of paper, which proclaimed that "when the House and Senate do adjourn today, Friday, June 16, they stand adjourned sine die," in which the concurrence of the Senate was requested.

Senator Glass was taking, and the paper was laid on Vice President Garner's desk as the still-packed galleries craned down. The Cutting-Glass flare-up ended and President Roosevelt's letter thanking Congress for its cooperation was read.

Then the Senate officially called its labors at end.

Bouquets In House

The House meanwhile had held a desultory round-table discussion of the session about to end. Bouquets were being passed freely.

Representative Cox (D-Ga.) complimented the President, the Speaker, the Republicans in the House, new members, the Democratic leader, Representative Smith of New York, the Republican leader, praised the Speaker, the majority leader, Representative Byrnes (D-Tenn.) and other members.

And then Representative O'Connor (D-NY) spoke highly of everybody.

They wound up with words of applause for the President's praise of their performance.

NEWS CHURCHES

NACHUSA LUTHERAN CHURCH
Parents and children who have been looking forward to our annual Children's day service of cheer and happiness will have their hopes fulfilled next Sunday morning at 10:30.

The Sunday school committee appointed for the occasion are ready to present the children of the community in a well prepared program fully in keeping with established traditions.

Rev. P. H. Stahl, the superintendent of our orphanage, and a few of his children trained under his care will have a special part in his program.

As has been our custom to do for years, the offering at this service will be given to the orphanage which is very much in need of it at the present time of reduced incomes. Everybody is urged to bring a gift, however small, and share his bread with the needy.

Any one who believes that charity begins at home and is interested in a practical religion is cordially invited to join us in this Children's Day service.

H. Pscholz, pastor

FIRST METHODIST
Gilbert Stansell, Pastor
Sunday is known nationally as Fathers' Day and will be observed as such at the morning service at 10:45 o'clock. The pastor will be assisted by I. A. Hardy, president of the Men's club of the church, and his sermon will be entitled "Show Us the Father," a sermon stimulated by the careful reading of Dr. Henry P. Van Dusen's "The Plain Man Seeks for God." Every man, especially those of the church, is invited to be present as well as all others, men and women.

Fathers' Day as a movement is not so well established as Mothers' Day and Children's Day, but it is well launched and has possibilities. The young men have been asked to usher at this service.

The church school will convene at 9:45 and all not having other Sunday School affiliations are invited to be present.

Young People's Fellowship at 5 o'clock and Epworth League at 6:30. Dr. Stansell will conduct the worship at 7:30 and preach.

PRESIDENT OFF TONIGHT FOR A SHORT VACATION

Will Spend Two Weeks Off North Atlantic Coast

Washington, June 16.—(AP)—President Roosevelt happily ordered his bags packed with old sweaters and a slicker today for a sailing cruise up the North Atlantic coast.

By special train he leaves the Capital tonight for the coast of Massachusetts. A brief stop is planned tomorrow at Groton school near Boston to see his son, Franklin, Jr. Then motoring on to Marion, he expects to be aboard the schooner Amberjack II by nightfall.

Meantime today he called for pens to sign into law the last batch of bills from the adjourned Congress. He had invited the successful congressional leaders to be with him for the signing of the $3,300,000,000 public works and industrial supervision plan; the Glass-Steagall bank reform measure; the railroad reorganization program; the $3,600,000,000 appropriation for the public works and industrial planning; and the $500,000,000 appropriation for independent offices, including his compromise for veterans' allowances which withstood a desperate Senate attack in the closing days. Then final conferences were in order to get his administrators at work on the big new jobs.

Back In Two Weeks

Two weeks hence, he intends to be back directing the anti-depression campaign in person.

Roosevelt was sitting up in bed over his stamp collection when Stephen T. Early, a secretary, informed him shortly after 1 this morning that Congress had adjourned. A moment later his light was switched out, after orders to be called early for a plunge in the pool.

On Saturday morning he expects to start the Amberjack II sailing toward Campo Bello Island.

On account of the funeral of Lyle Siebolt at Nelson at 2:30 Sunday afternoon, the preaching appointment at Grand Detour will be postponed one week.

barely across the Canadian border from Maine. Here is his mother's summer cottage. He hopes to make up the days lost from the late adjournment of Congress, and arrive at his goal on scheduled time—June 28.

James, his eldest son, and two friends will assist him in the open seas, sailing as far as Portland. There, on June 22, he will change crews and his two young sons, Franklin and John, will join James in the family cruise up the rock-bound coast.

BAND DIRECTOR MASON ADOPTS NEW PROCEDURE

Drops National Anthem Until Last Concert Of Season

The regular weekly concert by the Dixon Civic Band, will be held at the Assembly Park Auditorium this evening starting at 8 o'clock. Director Russell Mason has instituted a new feature in band concerts relating to the playing of the national anthem, "The Star Spangled Banner."

In the first concert of the season one week ago today, the program opened with the playing of the national anthem. At the close of the last concert of the season, the band will again play the "Star Spangled Banner." In commenting upon the plan which is new to music lovers of Dixon and vicinity, Director Mason has said:

"I believe that music can be applied to teach disrespect for true American patriotism as much as any other thing. The old practice of playing the national anthem at the close of every program, in my mind, is the most disrespectful thing that music can accomplish. At this time in the program there's a rush and scramble to get out of the hall or vicinity where the program is being given. There is no patriotism exemplified when the crowd is scrambling to get to their cars or be the first to get out of the park, and on the other hand I believe that playing the national anthem at such a time, incurs disrespect rather than patriotism. Having observed this action, which undoubtedly is unconsciously done by the public, I have decided that the 'Star Spangled Banner' be played to the band at the opening of the summer concert season and again at the closing program. This is not entirely an original idea with me but is being practiced by directors throughout the country and has proven quite successful."

LARGEST PEACE-TIME FUND BILL TO WHITE HOUSE

Over Three And Half Billion Carried In Measure

Washington, June 15 —(AP)—The Senate today adopted the conference report on the $3,600,000,000 emergency appropriation bill and sent it to the White House. The House approved it yesterday.

Largest peace-time money measure on record, it carries funds to start off the big emergency reconstruction program's public works under the industrial bill and $150,000,000 for the government's share in the bank deposit insurance fund under the Glass-Steagall bill.

It also provides $50,000,000 for subscription to preferred shares in federal savings and loan associations under the home owners' loan act; $50,000,000 for subscription to the paid-in surplus of federal land banks under the emergency farm mortgage act; $40,000,000 for the farm credit act revolving funds; and $15,000,000 for payments to federal land banks to meet reductions in interest on farm mortgages.

Amendments added by the Senate and retained in the bill as sent to the White House include $250,000 for completion of the George Rogers Clark Memorial at Vincennes, Ind.; an increase from $5,000,000 to $8,000,000 in the Reconstruction Corporation's funds for loans to reconstruct buildings damaged by earthquake storm and fire; $100,000 for Senate investigation;

INSULIN IN DIABETES

When insulin was discovered, more than 10 years ago it was hailed by many as a gift of life to the victims of diabetes.

It has proved such. Nothing is more impressive than the sight of a young diabetic who, thanks to insulin, is alive and well today but who, in the pre-insulin era, would have been a pathetic sight.

Despite this, however, we read of the distinct rise in the number of diabetes deaths throughout the United States, and these deaths seem to cast a reflection on the effectiveness of insulin.

This contradiction merits our attention because it has far-reaching implications. The opponents of experimental medicine are inclined to use this situation to discredit scientific medicine.

Where is the fallacy in this argument, and wherein does the contradiction in the insulin situation reside?

In suln, as has been pointed out time and time again is not a cure for diabetes.

The important thing is that before the days of insulin a diabetic had only a short life expectancy. Now, with insulin, he may live for what in many instances amounts to the full span of his normal life.

When an individual who has diabetes dies of some complication involving, say the circulatory system or the kidneys, his death is usually registered as having been due to diabetes. The record of his death does not disclose that he may have been kept alive for many years because of insulin.

The value of insulin cannot therefore be witnessed in the so-called diabetic death rate. To appreciate its worth one would have to add up the years of life which it has given to diabetic sufferers.

Insulin, therefore, is a precious gift to afflicted mankind. The rise in diabetic deaths does not invalidate its worth. It does not discount experimental medicine of which insulin is one of the products.

Miners Kept Out Of Saline County

Harrisburg, Ill., June 15 —(AP)—Deputy sheriffs of Saline county today turned back 37 miners on highway 13, who said they were from out of the county and were going to work at Peabody Mine No. 43.

The men turned back without any protest. The deputies said they were acting under the orders of Sheriff Eugene Choiser of Saline county.

Peabody mine officers reported that 110 men were at work in the mine, including several Saline county miners who returned to work within the last day.

There are about 10 total eclipses of the sun in every 18 years.

May Reject Plans

For Peru Nat. Bank

Washington, June 15 —(AP)—Commenting on the plan for reorganization of the State National Bank of Peru, which was received today, Rep. Dirksen said the Comptroller's office had indicated to him it might be rejected.

Conferences with the Comptroller are being continued, he added, saying that the Comptroller had informed him no receiver for the bank had been appointed, and that the department was preparing an alternative plan for reorganization of the bank.

This plan probably will be submitted to stockholders, depositors and all other interested parties early next week, he said.

Comments On Program Dixon Orch. On Sunday

The fourth number on the program to be rendered by the Dixon Philharmonic Orchestra, Sunday, at the Assembly Park Auditorium at 3 o'clock will be a cello solo played by Robert G. Smith, pupil of Prof. Samuelson, and accompanied by his mother, Mrs. H. A. Smith. It is a polonaise of the celebrated Popper.

David Popper, violin-cellist, was born at Prague, 1846. He received his musical training at the conservatory in his native city, under Golttermann. In 1863 he toured through Germany. Von Bulow played in concerts with him and obtained for him the title of chamber virtuoso to Prince Hohenzollern. He continued his tour through Holland, Switzerland and England, and on returning to Austria in 1867 he made his Vienna debut. For five years he was solo-cellist at the court-opera but in 1873 he resigned and resumed his journey, visiting the principal European cities, and touring the provinces of Ireland and Scotland. Since 1896 he has been a professor at the Royal Conservatory in Budapest. Popper was one of the greatest contemporary cellists. He played in a polished, classical style, though full of expression and his tone was large.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BARRETT COLVIN, back in New York after four years, finds himself much attracted by 20-year-old ELINOR STAFFORD. Barrett is 35, wealthy and has made a name for himself as an archeologist. Elinor's mother, LIDA STAFFORD, is beautiful and, because she wants attention for herself, has always forced her daughter to wear unbecoming clothes and keep in the background. Lida schemes constantly to keep in the good graces of her husband's wealthy aunt, MISS ELLA SEXTON, in order to inherit a share of the Sexton fortune.

Barrett's half-sister, MARCIA RAYNOR, tells him she is terrified for fear her husband will learn of an unfortunate episode in her past. Years before Barrett shielded Marcia when a youthful flirtation ended disastrously. Marcia had a son whom Barrett adopted. The boy is nine years old now and his tutor, HAROLD DIXTER, has threatened Marcia with blackmail. She declares that if her husband learns the truth he will never forgive her.

Barrett goes to visit nine-year-old GERALD, his ward. He decides to discharge the tutor and find a new home for the boy. When he reaches home he finds a note from Ella Sexton.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V
BARRETT took the note and read it. "Lord!" he muttered complainingly. Higgins looked his sympathy—head on one side, lips drooping—and the picture he made restored Barrett's good nature.

"Summons to Miss Sexton's for tea," he said, smiling. "No getting out of it, I suppose. You know what to lay out for me." He paused, then asked, "Is Miss Smythe still with Miss Ella?"

"Yes, Mr. Barrett."

When he was a boy, Barrett recalled, Miss Smythe had been Miss Ella Sexton's secretary and he had always half-dreaded her. A cold, bloodless creature. Of Miss Ella he was really fond. She was a snob but likeable in spite of it.

Half an hour later he was being ushered into the old-fashioned, high-ceilinged parlor.

"How delightful!" Miss Ella exclaimed. "Come in, Barrett." And to the butler, "That will be all, Craven. Tea as usual."

Barrett crossed the room to bend above Miss Ella's hand. She had acquired a cane since he left. "I am growing old, Barrett," Miss Ella said, her voice faintly unsteady, "and as one ages one fears slipping from the world. It is not things I have done that trouble me but those I have not done."

"My Lord!" thought Barrett. "Miss Ella's human after all!"

"Not unkindly things," she hastened to add. "But—there was a young man, Barrett. I don't mind saying it now. Your father—"

"My dear!" he murmured, touched. "You're like him!" she cried and then turned to wipe her eyes. Almost immediately her mood changed. "After tea," she said crisply, "I have an affair of business to discuss with you, Barrett."

HE wondered uncomfortably what this could be. The last thing he wanted was to have any one think he wished to be "remembered" in the long-talked-of Sexton will. He was about to put a question when Craven entered with the tea tray. Old Spode and silver. A pound cake. As a Barrett had always been delighted to take two pieces, Miss Ella had remembered his fondness, doubtless would expect him to have two pieces today. He writhed at the thought. The butler brought his cup and saucer and was dismissed. Miss Ella asked about Barrett's travels and he made brief, polite answers. That done, she turned to her concern.

"Ah, Barrett Colvin!" Lida called prettily. She came forward and held out her hand.

"As you know, Barrett," she began, "my fortune is quite a considerable one."

"Yes, Miss Ella." He would have given $20 for a cigarette but dared not risk it. "And you also know my large family connection."

"Yes," he agreed again. She was diverted for a second. He had not had his second piece of pound cake. How thoughtless of her! Miss Ella smiled, cajoling him, for to her he was a boy. He took the second piece with as much enthusiasm as he could muster.

Then she began the story—an old one he knew well. Miss Ella wanted to leave her fortune where it would do good. She was fond of her niece, Bessie, who had married Jim Thrope but she had heard—through Lida Stafford—that Bessie was wasteful. Besides that, James Thrope lacked ambition. On the other hand, her nephew, Bentwell Stafford, was "an addict to alcohol" while Lida, his wife, "encouraged young men!" This was said with a tight closing of lips, a shake of the head.

Soon, Barrett realized, she would speak of her grand-nephew, Philip Sexton, to whom she had given a home. It came. "I had suspicions of Philip," she began.

BARRETT leaned forward and she halted. "I hope you'll forgive this," he said. "It's frightfully impertinent of me, I know, but remember—one finds that for which one is looking."

"I did not make his forgery of my check by looking for it?" Miss Ella stated stiffly. "No," Barrett admitted. He sat back. She hesitated a moment and he knew the crisis of her talk to be near.

"Which do you think to be the most deserving of my trust, Barrett?" Miss Ella asked. "I don't know any of your relatives at all, Miss Ella. They're only acquaintances."

"Ah! That is exactly the point, Barrett. I want you to know them and tell me all you know!" He was outraged; he flushed darkly. For a moment he could not speak. Then, remembering that she was old, he said carefully, "Miss Ella, I cannot spy on them. I wouldn't do that—why, I couldn't do that if I were uncertain where to leave my own money!"

"You misunderstand me!" "Sorry," he murmured. "I thought—"

"I will explain. I merely want you to drop in; to meet them occasionally; to tell me how you like them."

He laughed a little uneasily and leaned forward, arms on knees. He shook his head, smiling at her. "Too large a responsibility," he assured her.

Then he saw that she was angry. "I am not accustomed to having people refuse my orders, Barrett!"

"I know, dear," he admitted unhappily. The "dear" melted her. "Ah, Barrett," she quavered. "I'm old, so old I sometimes fear they come to see me only because of what I have. I do not want my money, which might do so much good, to be lost in idle pleasure. Lida with her frocks—Bessie throwing away good food—Bentwell drinking! I am so distracted! I had thought of leaving Doctor Bold a tidy sum for his work among the poor but not now. Not now! I have found him to be unworthy, Barrett. He is using candles on the altar!"

Barrett's lips were set. He wanted to laugh and yet it wasn't funny.

"Aunt Ella," said Barrett, "I'd like to help you but I really can't see how I can."

SHE was staring at her frail old hands which looked like parchment stretched on knobby ivory.

"Will you come when I ask you to tea?" she questioned. She would assemble them and Barrett's face would tell the truth for him. Had she not known from it long ago about Marcia's affair with the riding master? She had only to read Barrett's troubled eyes and say to Marcia, "I saw you riding in the park—" to be sure of the whole disgraceful story. And Barrett's father, who had been her young suitor, dying at the very time in the house across the street; dying without knowing how matters lay and leaving his money as he would not have left it, had he known the facts. Life was a cruel maze and full of tricks. Miss Ella was determined that she would not be tricked. She would not be duped by those to whom she left her money as Barrett's father had been.

"Why, of course," Barrett replied to her question about coming to tea. "You know I'll come." "That is all I ask, Barrett."

"Very well," he said, standing up. The audience had come to an end and he was dismissed. "Then I shall welcome you to my home soon, Barrett."

"I hope so," he answered. His desire to please her—lonely, uncertain old soul—was sincere.

As Craven opened the street door for him Barrett saw a motor car stopping. Lida Stafford, Miss Ella's niece by marriage, was in the car. Barrett, seeing her, felt that she still deserved the fame for beauty that had been hers years before.

"Ah, Barrett Colvin!" she called prettily. She came forward, stripping off a glove and held out her hand. Barrett took it, bowing.

She was arrestingly lovely in a soft pink-and-white way. A bit too calendar-picture for Barrett, yet easy to look upon. Her beauty was quite different from that of her daughter, Eleanor, yet it was Eleanor he longed to ask.

Lida said quickly, "You've been to see Aunt Ella, haven't you? How sweet of you! How is she today?"

"She seemed very well to me." "I'm so glad. I get so anxious about her," Lida went on. "I hope that some day you'll come to see me—I don't suppose it sounds very alluring but I'm so interested in all you've been doing!"

"May I drop in some day when your daughter too is at home?" Barrett asked. "I met her the other day." He flushed a little and loathed himself for doing so.

Lida's expression did not change but her thoughts did. Barrett Colvin—interested in Elinor? She wasn't going to have that for a moment. No, indeed—and she knew how to put a stop to it!
